

New England HOME

Celebrating Fine Design, Architecture, and Building

Winter Magic

High style in ski country

The homeowners requested a sauna in the primary bath for après-ski relaxation. The space includes a shower for cooling off mid-session.

Striking Transformations

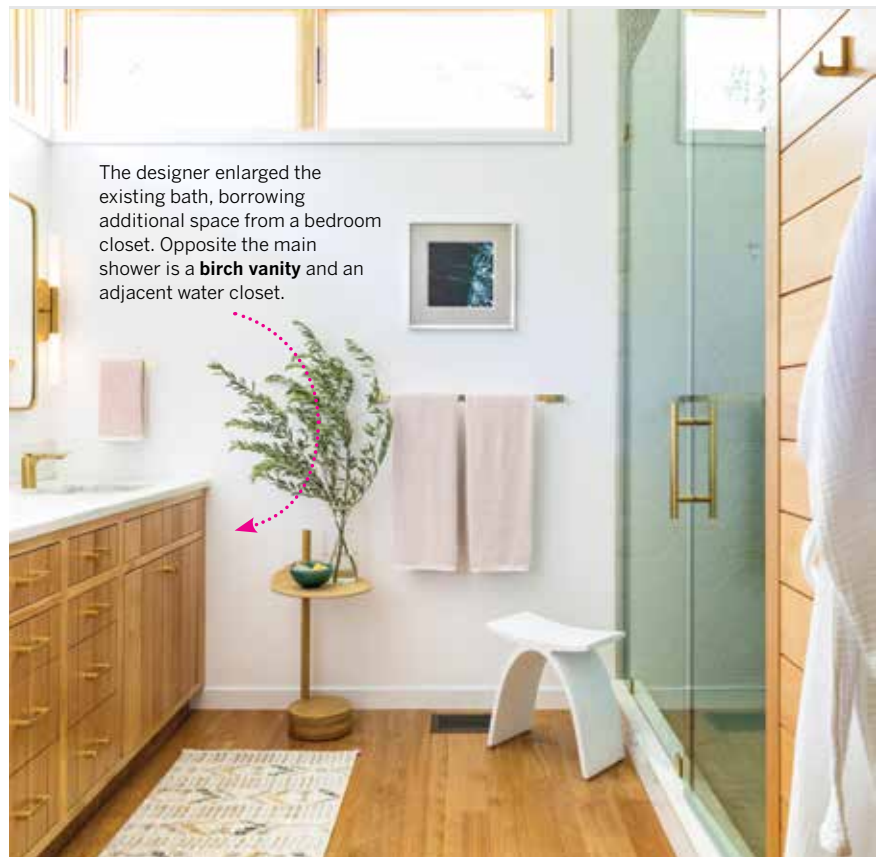

These renovations are packed with personality.

Text by ALYSSA BIRD

The sauna features a cedar interior and a hemlock exterior as well as accent lighting "to keep up the ambience," notes designer Teri Maher.

RESTFUL RETREAT

For their Warren, Vermont, ski getaway, a Boston family tapped interior designer Teri Maher to enlarge the primary bath and install a sauna for post-slope relaxation. “These clients asked for light, bright, warm, and modern with nods to Scandinavian design,” explains Maher, who expanded the room into an adjacent closet. “The sauna, which has a cedar interior and a hemlock exterior, includes a shower for cooling off and lighting for ambience.” Birch cabinetry and flooring, satin brass fixtures, Danby marble countertops, and glazed terra-cotta tile round out the scheme. “The clients also love Morocco,” says Maher, “so we chose Moorish-inspired shower tiles with a glaze that allows the terra-cotta to come through and lend warmth to the space.” ✨

The designer enlarged the existing bath, borrowing additional space from a bedroom closet. Opposite the main shower is a birch vanity and an adjacent water closet.

The double vanity is topped with Danby marble and features brass accents in the form of Graff sink fittings, Rejuvenation mirrors, and sconces by Kelly Wearstler.

As a nod to her clients' affinity for Morocco, Maher selected Moorish-inspired glazed-terra-cotta tiles from Walker Zanger for the shower. “The terra-cotta comes through the glaze and helps warm up the space,” says the designer.

INTERIOR DESIGN: Teri Maher Interiors	BUILDER: Newschool Builders	CABINETRY: Pomerantz Cabinetry	PHOTOGRAPHY: Liz Daly	STYLING: Melañio Gomez
---	---------------------------------------	--	---------------------------------	----------------------------------